

State Ordering, State Forms, and implications for managing diversity: Unitarism, Bonapartist-modelled State form: implications for sub-national units and handling regional/territorial peculiarities or variations. Unitarist models with openings for regional accommodation through Regions' enhanced self-governing powers over their specificities. Features of federal, federalizing systems. Historical trajectory of Cameroon's State ordering along its dual heritages; the priority of national unity. Constitutional models for managing diversity: integration/fusion or accommodation/co-existence?
